Fears of Soviet intervention into Poland diminished significantly Tuesday with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev declaring Poland's Communist Party could handle its own affairs and the Warsaw Pact maneuvers officially ending after three tension-filled weeks.

Walter Stoessel, undersecretary of state for political affairs and a former U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union and Poland, said in a TV interview in Washington that Brezhnev's remarks meant the Poles "have some time to put their house in order, and to settle their affairs."

A Western diplomat in Warsaw said Brezhnev's speech and the end of the maneuvers indicated the Kremlin intended to "calm the waters." But the source, who requested anonymity, said the end of the maneuvers "doesn't close off the threat of invasion."

The Warsaw Pact carried out similar exercises in Czechoslovakia in June 1968, two months before it intervened in Prague, and the source said, "it may very well have been a pressure tactic to begin with."

The Soviets will have at least 20,000 troops stationed in Poland, and Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger told NATO defense ministers in Bonn, West Germany, that if the Soviet Union intervened in Poland the United States would not consider future arms talks with the Kremlin.

The announcement on the end of the "Soyuz 81" maneuvers was made by the Czechoslovak news agency Ceteka, and carried by the Soviet news agency Tass and the Polish news agency PAP. It said the forces involved in the exercises in Poland and East Germany since March 18 were returning to their home bases.

"The objectives of the maneuvers have been fulfilled," the agency said of the maneuvers, which had been widely seen as a Soviet bloc effort to pressure Polish authorities to keep the independent labor union Solidarity in line after nine months of sporadic strikes and economic uprisings.

The exercises involved troops from the Soviet Union, East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Poland itself. They were the longest Soviet bloc military exercises since the 1968 Warsaw Pact intervention in Czechoslovakia, and were believed to involve at least 25,000 troops.

The announcement on their end came some eight hours after Brezhnev told the Czechoslovak Congress of the People's Deputies that he had faith that Poland's party would "prove able in adequate measure to oppose the designs of the enemies of the socialist system."

Czechoslovak party leader Gustav Husak had opened the meeting Monday with a warning that Polish problems were growing worse and causing "grave difficulties to our neighbors." Husak spoke with the obvious endorsement of Brezhnev, sitting behind him on the congress platform.

Four days after warning that a Soviet invasion of Poland might be imminent, Reagan administration officials breathed easier Tuesday following signs the Kremlin was prepared to let Poland work out its own problems.

At the State Department, spokesman William Dreyfus responded more cautiously to Brezhnev's speech.

"He meant to say that the Poles should be allowed to solve their own problems without outside interference, we would welcome this," Dreyfus said. "That's been our consistent position."

It was just last Friday that the Reagan administration seemed to have resigned itself to an imminent Soviet invasion. Despite an easing of tensions inside Poland, the Warsaw Pact troops had gone well beyond what U.S. officials said was required for the annual spring exercises.

Dreyfus, the State Department spokesman, said the Soviets were "capable of moving at any time."

From his hospital bed, President Reagan authorized the sending of a message by Brezhnev reportedly warning of grave consequences to East-West relations if Moscow interfered.

Space shuttle

No major delays seen

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Launch crews sacrificed a full-shift rest period Tuesday as back-to-back problems created a 10-hour delay of work to prepare the space shuttle Columbia for lift-off at dawn Friday.

"We're taking a little longer to make sure it's right," said test director Bill Schick. "At this time there is no trouble meeting a launch at 6:50 a.m. (EST) Friday."

Problems put preparations 10 hours behind schedule in the finely tuned countdown to launch.

Schick said six hours would be borrowed from a future "hold" in the countdown — a period when no activity is scheduled — and added to the planned eight-hour hold Tuesday. This would provide a total 14 hours to clear the backup and put the countdown back on schedule.

To get accustomed to an early wake-up on launch day, astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen have been gradually adjusting their sleep cycles — going to bed earlier and getting up earlier each day. Wakeup time was 4:45 a.m. Saturday. Sunday it was 4:15. Monday it was 3:45. On Thursday and launch day the call will come at 2:05 a.m.

The Columbia is the first spaceship designed to make repeated trips into space, using replenishable booster rockets and an expendable external fuel tank. The boosters drop away after two minutes of flight and are recovered; the external tank breaks up in the atmosphere once it is released after eight and one-half minutes of flight.

As launch day moved closer, space agency officials were a bit worried the weather. Mission rules require that the launch be scrubbed if head winds and cross winds are stronger than 10 knots at Cape Canaveral's 15,000-foot shuttle landing strip — in case the Columbia runs into trouble achieving orbit and has to return.

If weather or other problems delay the launch more than six hours beyond schedule Friday, the liftoff is likely to be delayed until Sunday because a 48-hour turnaround period is required once fuel has been pumped into the tanks.

Air Force weathermen predicted generally fair skies Friday, the temperature about 70 degrees and surface winds of 10 to 12 mph (11 to 14 knots).

All day Tuesday, starting at 10 a.m., countdown clocks on the launch pad stood still at one day, 14 hours and 30 minutes.

McCarthy released, Reagan says thanks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said a bittersweet farewell Tuesday to the Secret Service agent credited with saving his life eight days ago and then FBI agents what he could recall of those moments when he and three other men were shot.

"I wish you well on your vacation and to Mexico and I hope you find the bottom of your heart," a White House spokesman quoted Reagan as telling Timothy McCarthy when the agent stopped by on his way out of George Washington University Hospital.

McCarthy took a bullet in the liver March 30 when he stepped between a gunman and Reagan outside the Washington Hilton hotel. The head of the White House Secret Service detail told a Senate committee last week he thought McCarthy's action probably saved Reagan's life.

After McCarthy's brief visit, two unidentified FBI agents interviewed the president for 28 minutes in his hospital suite.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Larry Speakes said there would be no comment on what Reagan remembered about the six shots that were fired as he left the hotel.

Tuesday's medical bulletin said White House press secretary James S. Brady, shot twice in the head, was up in a chair twice yesterday. He can now drink by himself and is eating solid foods on a regular basis.

It said Brady was evaluated by the medical and occupational therapy staffs "who have initiated appropriate treatment programs."

Police officer Thomas Delahenty, wounded in the neck, was reported in good condition at Washington Hospital Center. His temperature was normal, but he was to remain on antibiotics for 24 hours "as a precautionary measure."

Reagan met with his top three aides early Tuesday and was briefed on developments in Poland and Lebanon. He signed several nominations, which the White House said would be announced later.

Poor families strain to make ends meet

This is the second in a two-part series dealing with poverty in Utah County.

Mary Taylor never expected she'd need financial assistance. She was married in the temple to a good priesthood leader and was living a near-perfect life. Then she got pregnant again. Her life doesn't always go according to plan, and one-half year ago, Mrs. Taylor's husband because he committed bigamy, child support and alimony-payment items, she found her financial situation dire. She wanted to raise her children, but needed help. After careful consideration and consultation with priesthood leaders, Mrs. Taylor sought the services of the church.

Taylor's story is not uncommon. The U.S. Census Bureau reports that of the children born in the United States during 1978, 45 percent will part of their childhood with one parent.

Single parent homes have increased from 8.5 percent in 1960 to 19 percent in 1978. Women 90 percent of these homes.

ends are similar in Utah. The census bureau found that from 1969 to 1975 the number of headed families increased from 6,831 to 10,000. Many of these families have poverty-level incomes.

earlier survey indicated these women were the poverty level because they weren't able to have their children and other household responsibilities to get jobs or acquire the skills necessary to obtain better paying jobs.

ough she had one and one-half years of some secretarial skills, most of Mrs. Taylor's time was in homemaking.

ost of the primary skills of birthing and raising children don't convert into dollar sums," Taylor said.

ough I could get a good secretarial the time away from my family would be harmful. My children would to sacrifice too much."

Debaters win 1st place in national competition

By EILEEN HUMBER

BYU's debate team won the National Cross Examination Debate Association Championship Monday in Reno, Nev., said Don Black, debate team coordinator.

This year BYU was consistently rated among the top five schools in the country, and it was chosen to compete in the final national CEDA tournament, said Black.

"Although the race for first place was extremely close, BYU's outstanding performance at this tournament put it well into first place over UCLA," Black said.

At the beginning of winter semester the idea of winning the championship was "only conceivable on paper, but not realistically possible," said Black.

BYU needed to accumulate many CEDA ballots to overtake the first and second placed schools. At the last debate tournament in San Luis Obispo, BYU received more points than any university has ever scored in a single tournament, said Black.

"Winning the championship was kind of like the outcome of the Holiday Bowl," said Larry Hadden, a freshman debater from Provo.

"This was the first time a single school has ever closed out both positions of the final round of this national final tournament. BYU amassed by far the largest point score total ever acquired by a university in a single year," said Black.

"Interestingly, BYU and Chicago's Wheaton College, one of the nation's most prestigious Protestant universities, dominated the semi-final rounds of the final championship tournament in Reno," said Black.

Senior Christopher Burley, Idaho Falls, and junior Lisa Kay from South Jordan, Utah, defeated a Wheaton team in one semi-final round. Junior Kim Wong and sophomore Shane Swindle, both from Provo, defeated the Wheaton team in the other semi-final round. This advanced the two BYU teams to the final round, said Black.

Since both teams were tied, the one semi-final that was canceled with BYU's team tied for first place, he said.

"The BYU debaters represented the standards of the university well and consequently the other schools not only respect BYU's debating ability but also their standards of conduct," said Black.

"Debaters from other schools observed that BYU deserved to win because of its high debating standards of debating," said Black.

"It's actually a tribute of respect that coaches and debaters from other top universities were continually offering to buy the drinks in a victory celebration knowing full well the BYU debaters were restricted to root beer," said Black.

Becky's medical bills may exceed $60,000

By JAN TAYLOR

University Staff Writer

Becky Barton will be admitted to UCLA Medical Center April 13, but a Becky Barton Fund spokeswoman said new information indicates Becky's hospital and doctor bills could exceed the $60,000 initially thought adequate for her treatment.

Dorothy Sudweeks said the benefit dinner held Monday night at the Utah Technical College Orem campus for the 13-year-old Orem girl suffering from acute myelogenous leukemia (AML) brought the total donations for Becky up to $104,000.

But a boy who recently moved to Alpine has been through the same experience and family members said their total bill was $250,000.

The family, which moved to Alpine from California, has a daughter who had AML last year. She underwent the bone marrow transplant in a Seattle medical center and is now considered cured.

"We were told expenses rarely went over $60,000," Mrs. Sudweeks said. "But our impression is the Seattle price and the Los Angeles prices are similar."

"We hope people realize we were hoping to get the $60,000. We just didn't know about the other bills," she said. "We don't want to ask for more money, but we would like to know if any of the money they gave will be used to help Becky get better."

Mrs. Sudweeks said one reason for the large bills was complications incurred after surgery. Persons undergoing bone marrow transplants are susceptible to post-surgery complications, most of which cannot be anticipated until after the operation is over, she said.

The maintenance program the patient is required to receive for one year, which consists of monthly doctor visits, blood tests and clinical work, also adds to the cost.

"We've really tried to get accurate information from the medical centers," Mrs. Sudweeks said.

The committee formed to raise money for Becky will be discontinued for at least six months, she said. By then the Barton family should begin to receive bills and an accurate estimate of Becky's bills can be reached, she said.

Though the committee has been dissolved, Mrs. Sudweeks said committee members want to encourage people to continue to contribute to the fund.

Various activities are planned to raise money for Becky, including Mountain View High School's presentation of "Sleeping Beauty" April 13 and the post office box will remain open for those wishing to mail contributions to the Bartons.

Mrs. Barton said it was encouraging to meet someone who had AML and see it was possible to recover completely.

"We'll be very surprised if Becky doesn't pull through with flying colors," she said. "Becky told me she just had to make it for all those people who donated money."

Mrs. Barton said the girl who recovered told them the support of family and friends at home made all the difference in the patients while in the center.

Mrs. Barton said she, Becky and Audrey will leave for Los Angeles sometime this weekend.

Lebanese battle rages

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Syrian troops and Lebanese Christians expanded fighting for highways in eastern Lebanon today, ignoring international appeals for a cease-fire.

A Beirut Syria troops experienced pocket and heavy armored fire with Lebanese army and militiamen of the right-wing Phalange across the Green Line dividing the Moslem and Christian sectors of the capital. A statement said the military pilot of Beirut received several rocket hits.

National police said 184 people were killed and 650 wounded seven days of fighting in this Mediterranean nation of 3 million. They said most of the fatalities were Christians.

House dumps GOP plan

WASHINGTON — The House Budget Committee dealt President Reagan his biggest congressional defeat to date Tuesday by dumping his budget blueprint favor of a Democratic alternative with smaller deficits and cuts, more spending on social programs and less on defense.

President George Bush said the action unacceptable vowed, "If we're going to have battles on the House side, we're prepared to do it."

Backed by Secret Service agents, Bush told an impromptu news conference at the Capitol, "I understand people doing their best to help. I have determined that this package that the president has proposed will get a chance ... and get this country back to work."

Military spending OK'd

WASHINGTON — Reagan administration proposals to cut military spending in the era of fighting ships survived two challenges in Congress Tuesday, with opponents charging the vessels would be a waste of money but backers saying they are needed to bolster a sagging U.S. fleet.

The Senate passed a $2.8 billion supplemental military spending bill for the rest of the current fiscal year by voice vote after beating back, 69-23, an amendment by Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., to ban use of any of the money to reactivate the 38-year-old battleship New Jersey.

School kids raise $1,500 for Brinkman

A check for $1,500, raised by school children, was presented to Curt Brinkman by the Cherry Hill Elementary School Tuesday for his trip to this year's Boston Marathon.

Brinkman was last year's winner of the wheelchair division of the Boston Marathon.

"I was amazed at the amount of money they raised," Brinkman said. "I'm really thrilled."

Paul Hanson, principal of Cherry Hill, said the experience has been the most worthwhile he has been involved in since becoming principal.

"The total amount came by pennies, nickels and dimes from over 600 children," Hanson said.

Madge Taylor and Arlene Craig were the chairwomen of the project. Mrs. Craig said the parents and the PTA helped greatly in raising the money.

Ceremony to honor advertising seniors

Six seniors in advertising will be honored by Comm. the association of professional advertisers in the Provo area, according to George Barrus, an advertising professor.

The ceremony will take place in F201, HFAC, from 6 to 7 p.m. today.

A representative from Chrysler will be in attendance, according to Barrus, as will two representatives from Kenyon and Eckhardt, an advertising agency working for Chrysler.

April marriages: plan ahead

By JUCE EDSTROM Utah Staff Writer

"It is a time for us to prepare for what is to come for many students to prepare them for marriage," said Barker, Utah marriage clerk. "Last April there were 1,000 marriages issued from Provo and about 80 percent of them were BYU students. That means 700 people came to this office in one month."

Marriage requirements
According to Utah requirements, a marriage must be obtained from a county clerk in Utah before a marriage is valid. The license is valid for 30 days after it is issued.

Malone hits 27 as Houston shocks Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Moses Malone scored 27 points and Calvin Murphy came off the bench to hit 21 Tuesday night as the Houston Rockets continued their Cinderella march through the NBA playoffs by shocking San Antonio 107-98 in the opener of their Western Conference semifinal series.

The battle-tested Rockets, who knocked defending champion Los Angeles out of the playoffs with two West Coast wins, negated the Midwest Division champion Spurs' home-court advantage.

San Antonio, which enjoyed a nine-day layoff with an opening-round bye, came out smoking in the first quarter and jumped to a 27-18 lead with 2:21 to go in the opening period, behind eight points from George Gervin.

But Houston reeled off eight unanswered points and trailed by one point, 27-26, at the end of the period.

The lead changed hands 10 times and the score was tied twice in the second period, as Murphy got hot and collected 15 of his points to stake Houston to a 62-53 halftime lead.

Malone hit nine points in the third period and San Antonio could get no closer than seven. The Rockets led by as much as 11 at the end of the third quarter, 84-73, and had slowed down the tempo until that point.

In the final period San Antonio rallied and cut the margin to 96-90 with 3:19 left, but Rocket guard Mike Dunleavy scored four points in the final three minutes to take the wind out of the Spurs' sails.

Gervin led all scorers with 30 points and Ron Brewer had 18 for the Spurs.

Bucks top 76ers to even series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Marques Johnson scored 22 points and Mickey Johnson added 20 as the Milwaukee Bucks rallied in the final period Tuesday to defeat the Philadelphia 76ers 109-99 and deadlock their best-of-seven National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semifinal at one game apiece.

The Bucks, Central Division champions, thus stole the home court advantage as the two teams headed for Milwaukee, where the next two games will be played Friday and Sunday.

The Bucks held 87-82 with nine minutes left to play but then outscored Philadelphia 19-8 for a 101-95 lead.

In the final period, Marques Johnson and Mickey Johnson each scored eight points to pace the Milwaukee rally.

Milwaukee held their season-long nemesis, Julius Erving, to 18 points, including only two in the final quarter.

Bobbi Jones, the 76ers' excellent sixth man, contributed 22 points, but it wasn't enough to hold off the Bucks.

The teams were tied 77-77 entering the final quarter. A field goal by Darryl Dawkins and two by Andrew Toney boosted Philadelphia's lead to 83-79. After Steve Mix and Bobby Jones made it 87-82, the Bucks rallied.

At one point in the last quarter, Marques Johnson was 7-for-7 from the field in the torrid rally.

The Bucks got 23 hits on 48 trips to the plate, compared to one for Air Force.

Paul Day, the winning pitcher, allowed only three hits in five innings as he upped his record to 5-2 on the season.

BYU's top pitcher, Peter Kendrick, watches one of his three hits soar into the field. Kendrick not only pitched a no-hitter in the first game, but he had three hits in four times at bat as the designated hitter in the second game.

Cougar nine bombs Air Force Falcons

By FLOYD ROSE
University Staff Writer

Kenny Clayton added two more school records to his list of achievements while Leon Baham and Steve Campbell set school records of their own as the Cougars in both halves of a double-header Tuesday afternoon.

BYU downed the Falcons in the first game 7-0 behind the no-hitter pitching of Peter Kendrick. The no-hitter was Kendrick's second of the season and his record is 8-2.

Kendrick struck out 12 Falcon batters in the game and gave up only two walks as he lowered his earned run average to 1.21.

The Cougars came up with nine hits in the game, with second baseman Mark Adamiak going two-for-two. The designated hitter, Scott Pappas, and Clayton both collected two hits while Ralph Baldenegro, Walley Joyner and Leon Baham had one hit each.

In the second game the Cougars had a field day at the plate as was evident from their nine-run first inning.

The Cougars got 23 hits on 48 trips to the plate, compared to one for Air Force.

Paul Day, the winning pitcher, allowed only three hits in five innings as he upped his record to 5-2 on the season.

Dave Beck allowed three hits in two innings and Todd Moriarty didn't give up a hit in the final inning for the Cougars.

Cougar third baseman Kenny Baham had three home runs and a double, going five of six on the day. The third home run pushed his total to 32, which is a school record of 31. His double upped his career total to 46 which pushed him ahead of the old record of 45.

Clayton already holds the school record for career number of hits with 232 and number of runs batted in with 167. He is also closing in on the school records for runs scored, where he lacks eight runs, and trips to the plate, needing only 27 at bats to break that record.

Baham and Campbell both had seven at bats in the second game, which set a new school record, and Baham came up with five hits out of his seven trips to set a new school record for number of hits in a game.

Campbell totaled four hits in the game, and Leif Olsen, Kendrick and Clayton each had three hits.

BYU pitchers struck out a total of 20 Air Force batters and allowed only six walks while the Falcon pitchers could manage only seven strike outs in giving up 13 bases on balls.

Celts roll past Bulls 106-97

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics rolled to a 26-point lead early in the second quarter and behind 27 points from Robert Parish and Nate Archibald, withstood a late Chicago rally to score a 106-97 victory over the Bulls in the National Basketball Association playoffs Tuesday night.

The victory gave Boston a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinals.

The Celtics scored the first eight points and built a 42-16 bulge with 8:32 to play in the second quarter.

But the Bulls chippered away at the lead, cutting it to 53-58 at halftime and 76-66 after three quarters.

From the time Archibald's 31st foul gave Boston a 12-2 lead 3:18 into the game, the margin never dipped below 10 until Ricky Sobers' basket for the Bulls closed the gap to 96-87 with 4:02 left in the game.

Orlando's Reggie Theus and Parish traded baskets, but Sobers threw in a three-point field goal making the score 98-92 with 1:46 to play.

The Celtics then stretched their lead by 10, but the foul line figures on a bank shot by Parish and two free throws by Archibald.

Thrus added another three-point basket to make the score 102-95, but a bucket by Cedric Maxwell and two more free throws by Archibald boosted the lead to 106-95 with 24 seconds remaining.

The Bulls, who go home for Friday night's third game in the series, were led by Theus with 16 and Artis Gilmore with 19 points.

Young successful as coach, gymnast

By PAMELA JO GREEN
University Staff Writer

As a gymnast, Wayne Young is a Olympian. As a coach, he is a coach. No matter what Young, the man's gymnastic coach, does, he does it well. Not only does BYU recognize his achievements, but during this past weekend's NCAAA Gymnastic Championships, he was honored as Midwest Coach of the Year by his peers.

COACH WAYNE YOUNG

When asked why he was chosen of all the other coaches with top-ranked teams and top-ranked gymnasts, Young said he didn't know he had been selected. "Coaches don't judge on how a coach can recruit, but if he take a kid from nothing and make him something," he said. "Not that Young had nothing, he did take this year's team in the 29th to the 15th position the next year." Young said, "on his team he improved more in any other gymnasts on any other team," he said. "The other ones can see that." Young's achievements are dined by his national championships. He is one of a select few win a national championship as athlete and a coach, as well as representing the United States at the Olympics.

In 1975, he won the NCAA all-around competition as a BYU gymnast. In 1976, he was captain of the U.S. Olympic Gymnastic Team in Montreal. He placed 12th, the highest score by an American in 40 years. Then in 1979, as the gymnastic coach at Odessa College, he directed the team to the National Junior College championship. There he was honored as the NJCAA Coach of the Year.

Young credits his coaching success to his program. "We are building a pyramid. We want a lot of kids on the bottom pushing up. Then as we move up the weak when we lose kids from injury, graduation or redshirting."

Young said the key to any strong team is recruiting. He said when he recruits, the first thing he does is investigate a gymnast's credentials and standards to see if he can fit into the program. "I want to make sure he'll be happy in an LDS environment," said Young.

Young said there are a lot of gymnasts who like BYU's environment, which explains why all his recruits for next year are not LDS.

Young then looks at how a gymnast is doing and how long he has been in gymnastics. "I think you can tell how much a kid is going to improve. A lot of kids are good, but lack motivation. Then there are kids with so much motivation that even if they don't have a coach, they're going to get it," he said.

Young already has his predictions for the next two seasons. "With next year's recruits, we should be able to pull into the top 10. The following year we should be among the top five."

Young, referring to his pyramid and how he expects the team to have enough depth in two years to overcompensate the departure of his strongest gymnast, Masahiko Kinjo.

In the meantime, Young plans to continue coaching gymnastics, "while I still have a successful program, while I am still affecting kids and while the excitement is still there for me," he said.

Famous ring promoter exposed as 'bunco artist'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The boxer known as boxer of the year Harold J. Smith, named in an embezzlement suit by Wells Fargo Bank, has ended with the nation Smith is someone else — as described by federal officials fugitive "bad-check and bunco artist" who parlayed the name of former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali into a prominent position in boxing, burst into gulps as he stood before a federal magistrate Monday and said, "My name is Ross Fields."

Fields' relatives, including his son, wanted in Alabama on federal charges of interstate transportation of fraudulent securities, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Dean Allison. He has used 20 aliases over the years, Allison said.

Smith, who was arraigned on a passport-falsification charge, was ordered held on $200,000 bail on that complaint and on a warrant from North Carolina, where he is wanted in a check forgery case.

His attorney said friends hoped to post bond sometime today.

Netters challenge Weber

While many tennis teams across the country have been playing outdoors for months, BYU's squad will make its 1981 outdoor debut Wednesday when the Cougars challenge Weber State in Ogden.

In an earlier match on the BYU indoor courts, the Cougars trounced the Wildcats 8-1. BYU dominated all six singles matches and lost only the No.3 doubles match.

The Cougars are 12-10 on the season following a 7-2 defeat at the hands of in-state rival Utah last week. Only one more dual match is on BYU's schedule before the WAC Championships May 9 in Provo.

Sophomore Richard Bohne and junior Mike Codiga continue to lead the BYU team in statistics. Bohne's record is 18-10 for a .642 winning percentage. Codiga's record is 16-9, a .640 winning average.

Junior Chris Spackman is the only other singles player for BYU with a winning record. He is currently 14-11 in the No.5 singles position. Team captain Rick Fough dropped below the .500 level to 13-14 when he lost to Utah's Jeff Robins last week in the No.1 singles match.

'Masada'

TV show not truly authentic

By MARA CALLISTER

Asst. Entertainment Editor

Peter O'Toole's character in "Masada" is a Hollywood dream not a historic fact.

S. Ken Brown, a professor of ancient scripture in BYU's religion department, said O'Toole plays a general who did not actually become governor until after the fall of Jerusalem, and only months before the fall of Masada. To make his point, Brown quoted part of a historic account by Josephus, a Jewish general who recorded the entire bloody war.

Because of this record, the world has a great deal to learn about the morning of Masada, said Brown. The show's discrepancy in the takeover and errors in characterization prompted him to call its first two episodes "less than Hollywood."

Hollywood, for instance, created the Roman intrigue that leads the King in "Masada" to refuse Silva's list of Jewish concessions. "Rome came close to winning the war so it was the very fact that these Zealots still existed that troubled them," said Brown.

"All of Silva's story is actually whitewash. There is no way it can be pinned down," he summed up.

In part one, another scene shows the Zealots threatening to throw the scrolls and members of another Jewish sect down the mountain if they do not give up their抵抗. "It's a bit silly and irrelevant. But the Zealots threw down their arms at the time the temple was burned because the symbol of their resistance was gone. So they were very religious while they are not portrayed as such in Hollywood," the religion teacher explained.

With so much fiction, what really did happen?

First, Josephus became the Jewish general in 67 A.D., surrendered to Roman legions in that same year, and later gained freedom after his release. The general who would eventually become emperors came true. Back in Rome, he wrote that the Roman legions destroyed Jerusalem and its temple in 70 A.D., and that Silva entered the scene as the new Jewish governor in the spring of 73 A.D.

Brown, using Josephus as his source, detailed the rest of the events. As early as 66 A.D., years before they knew Silva, a group of rebellious Jews had taken over the temple. When the Roman character came on the scene only in time to build the wall around the mountain that stopped Jews from escaping, and to man several fortresses in the valley below and to storm Masada later in 73 A.D.

A smart man, the governor used Jewish slaves to build the stone walls and packed earth ramp that led up one of our two possible entrances to the fort. Although the Zealots could disturb the work, they could not destroy the earth ramp leading to their own destruction.

Every Jew on Masada died during the siege except two women and five children. They became the source for Josephus' account.

Brown said the 960 Zealots could have lived on the peak for many more years than they did because of the three-feet high cisterns built into the walls of the fort. These filled with rain water and were originally designed to make the mountain a secure fortress for the Romans in case Queen Cleopatra of Egypt attacked Palestine.

The entire story of Masada's bloody takeover is in chapter eight, Book VII, of Josephus' "Jewish War."

The final part of the television drama plays tonight at 8.

Man eats 72 raw eggs

CAIMBRIDGE, Md. (AP) — A 30-year-old Cambridge man swallowed 72 raw eggs in one hour at a local pub Saturday to stake a claim to a world record.

Glenn McNaughton was the winner in the media event which began three years ago when Danny Marsh, a 23-year-old Cambridge police station attendant decided to try to break what is believed to be the raw-egg-eating record of 50 in one hour.

After several close failures, Marsh only managed to eat 44 Saturday. Marty Andrews, 26, swallowed 40 and the fourth contestant, William Burton, 30, downed 60.

Utah County Sheriff Mack Holley works at his desk. Holley has worked in the sheriff's department for more than 20 years and says it has never been an easy job.

'Not an easy job,' says Sheriff Holley

By PATRICK GEDDES
University Staff Writer

Being sheriff of Utah County has never been an easy job, according to 60-year-old Mack Holley, but it looks as though the most difficult part lies ahead.

The toughest part of this job is progress, he said. "Criminals use better, more modern methods today so the police agencies must get better," he said.

Holley, who has served as sheriff for 20 years, is no stranger to progress or hard work. He ran his own department store in Spanish Fork for 18 years and was very successful at it.

Deputy sheriff

In 1960 he joined the sheriff's department as a deputy sheriff and has been hard at work ever since.

His decision to join the sheriff's department was not an easy one, he said. Wanda Holley, Sheriff Holley's wife, said the change was a difficult one and she worried a lot more.

It was a strange set of circumstances that vaulted Holley into the top spot in 1973. The sheriff at the time was Ralph "Dick" Chapple, who was very ill. When he died before his term of office was up, the Utah County Commission appointed Holley to take his place.

In 1974, Holley was elected sheriff and was re-elected in 1978.

Though he has been with the department for more than 20 years, Holley said some deputies in the department have been in law enforcement twice as long as he has.

"Back when I joined the force you didn't need to be a college graduate to get a job," said Holley. "Now it seems that everyone is coming through the college ranks."

With the rapid growth in Utah County, Holley says the future looks "busy." The population nearly doubled from 1970 to 1980 and has caused a few more problems for us," said Holley.

One of the most critical problems faced by the department is lack of personnel, he said, adding that the emphasis on budget cutting has made it difficult to have all the officers necessary.

"It used to be the sheriff's department would take care of people caught stealing cattle," he said. "Sometimes officers would help settle disputes between farmers. Now, instead of assisting the city officers out of the city, the sheriff's office is doing more work to solve the type of crimes that used to take place only in the cities."

Crime prevention

Holley said crime prevention is a community affair involving everyone. One of the best examples of the volunteer idea is the search and rescue team.

"This group has been serving the county for years strictly as volunteers and is made up of regular citizens," said Holley. "The group shows how the police and law enforcement can work together. There is no way the sheriff's department can control all the crime in this area without the help of the community."

Holley said he has always looked for ways to improve the professionalism of the department and many specialized departments have been added to alleviate the work load on the officers.

The most important thing in his life is his family, Holley said.

He and his wife were married in 1941 and the Salt Lake Temple and now reside in Spanish Fork.

They are the parents of five children and have nine grandchildren, all of whom live locally.

He said he wants to make sure Utah County will be safe for all children because he knows what it's like to raise a family in the shadow of Mt. Timpanogos.

Free student magazine is 'For You'

Helping students cope with university life is the object of a BYU class-produced magazine which is being distributed free of cost on campus.

Between the covers of "For You" are tips on surviving college crises ranging from dateless weekends to landing a job after graduation.

The magazine is a publication of The Daily Universe and was produced by a magazine class taught by Dr. Edward O. Harolden, a professor of communications. Art director of the magazine is David Nay, a junior from Merced, Calif., majoring in design. Associate editor is graduate student Joyce Wettach.

Students may pick up copies of the publication at stands near the north and south entrances to the Harris Fine Arts Center.

The magazine may also be obtained at the department of communications offices, E-509 HFAC, until all copies are gone.

The magazine has been financed by advertising sales, profits from the Reader's Digest/BYU Workshop for Magazine Article Writers which Harolden directed at Park City last October, and a grant from a Salt Lake City firm.

The 32-page magazine deals with subjects ranging from the thrills and tragedies of dating to the temptations of cheating.

Harolden explained that the articles were selected for the magazine on the basis of reading samples conducted after his class published similar magazines for three years.

"We found students hungry for information about how to cope with the pressures of college life," Harolden said. "For You" is designed to help people solve the everyday problems of surviving at a university."

Students in Harolden's magazine article writing and his magazine editing classes produced the 19 articles included in the magazine.

Titles from the publication offer clues about the content.

"Is Your Resumé Good Enough?" offers tips on sharpening a major tool students will use to carve a foothold in their career fields. Another article tells how to sell one's self in a job interview.

Dealing with the sometimes painful process of getting an automobile and keeping it running is the subject of a pair of articles called "Don't Buy a Lemon" and "Car Repairs ... Or Ripoffs?"

ROTC cadets honored

Thirty-four cadets received awards ranging from watches to a history book. Tuesday at the BYU Army ROTC Annual Awards Banquet.

Besides the ROTC unit awards, awards were presented from 11 national and local organizations including the U.S. Army Center for Military History and Daughters of the American Revolution.

W. Rolfe Kerr, executive vice president of BYU, spoke at the banquet on the benefits of military service.

Highest honors

Donn Grimes, a senior in microbiology from Davis, Calif., received the highest honor, the Professor of Military Science Award. Grimes was chosen by military science professors as the top senior in the ROTC, said Col. L. T. Kallunki, director of military science.

James Williamson, a senior majoring in anthropology from Anaheim, Calif., received the second highest honor, the Commandant of Cadets Award.

Rich Gividen, a senior majoring in psychology from Copperas Cove, Texas, received the third highest honor, the Leadership Award.

Cosmo, squads picked to lead next year's pep

The contests are over and squads have been picked to represent BYU and its teams for over 30 sports for the 1981-82 season.

James Kimmel, athletics adviser, said rising costs for funding a squad is one reason this year's cheering squad will be cut from the traditional six men, six women and Cosmo to five of each and Cosmo.

Also, the National Collegiate Athletic Association has ruled that no more than 12 pep squad members from a school can be on the court at the same time during its post season basketball tournament.

During last week's contest, the original field of 49 girls, including three from last year's squad, was cut to 20, then finally nine before the squads were selected. Each girl was required to perform various dance and cheer routines, then ability and flexibility skills.

The winners announced to the dwindling crowd of friends, mothers and girl watchers, were veterans Lori Smith, Raytown, Mo., who will head the squad, and Penny Pairs, Salt Lake City; and newcomer Stacey Swindel, Provo; Karen Carpenter, Lake Oswego, Ore.; and Ann Schuster, Cupertino, Calif.

In the men's tryouts, held two days later, 23 men and a videotape showed up to compete. The tape belonged to Tom Gallegos, who is on a semester abroad. The field was cut to 10, including Gallegos. The contestants were judged more on skill and strength than their female counterparts.

Crime watch set

The Neighborhood Crime Watch Program will be presented to the citizens of Utah County cities by the Utah County Board of Realtors, local police departments and The Utah Hands Up, which is the major anti-crime organization in the state.

The program is being presented in conjunction with National Police Property Week, said John Phelon Jr., local chairman for the week, April 19-25. The theme of the week is "Private property rights, know and protect them," Phelon said.

Motivation needed for dieting

By Dr. CLOYD C. HOFHEINS and ROY HENDRICKS

Q. I've decided to take President Kimball's advice and improve myself, so a diet's in order. Any suggestions?

A. Motivation or inner drive is the most important factor in any weight loss program. To lose weight and keep it off, you must change your eating habits. Anyone can lose weight. Obesity is caused when more food or calories are taken into the body than it uses up so the excess is stored as fat.

Adipose tissue (fat) is composed of cells that are very elastic. The body converts excess fat, protein and carbohydrates into fat and deposits the excess in the fat cells. These cells can expand to take in more fat, and when the amount of fat is reduced, the cells shrink, but do not go away.

Special diets are usually boring and not nutritionally safe. They do not provide new eating habits so the weight is usually back on in six months.

A proper diet consists of a change in eating habits and a knowledge of proper nutrition. Here are some dieting tips for those who want to control their weight:

A person at rest needs around 10 calories per hour to maintain his weight. There are about nine calories per gram of fat (.28 grams equal one ounce). Therefore, if you weigh 150 pounds, you need 1,500 calories to maintain your body weight at rest. If you cut your food intake to 1200

The newly selected 1981-82 pep squads and Cosmo show off their winning smiles for camera. The number of yell leaders and cheerleaders has been cut to five each because of ing costs.

Poverty

Emotional effects of divorce are complicated by financial problems, Mrs. Taylor said. "One of the biggest problems after a divorce is the loss of self esteem," she said. "To need assistance is a drain on your pride."

Mrs. Taylor concerned by feelings of inadequacy by helping others. She involved herself with community organizations which help low-income families. She works with several organizations, including Headstart and Utah legal services.

"I believe in people programs," she said. "I believe we should spend our taxes on people instead of military aid for other countries."

She is concerned by feelings of inadequacy about providing housing, clothing and food for their dependents. Food is the biggest worry, according to Judy Lowe, a member of the board of the Community Action Agency and a former recipient of direct welfare. Though her husband is working, Mrs. Lowe still needs food stamps to make ends meet.

"Nutrition bothers most poor people," Mrs. Lowe said. "Most poor people, in fact 90 percent, are overweight because they live on macaroni, potatoes, starch foods and fruit because they're the cheapest things."

"Poor people have a lot of pride," she said. "But when it comes to a choice of your kids or your pride, you bury your pride."

Mrs. Lowe said poor people don't want to be supported by the government, but want to how to support themselves.

"We're not asking for a hand-out," she said. "We're asking for a helping hand."

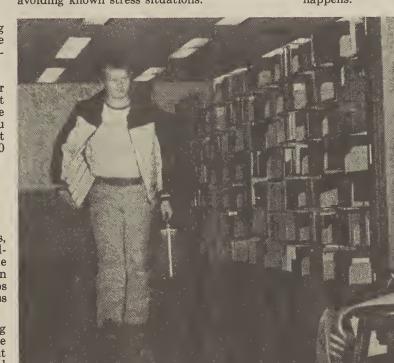

Helping hands are stretched out across Low-income people receive help from many cities, including Utahns Against Hunger, the State Citizen's Coalition and the Community Action Agency.

There are a variety of federal programs available, including direct welfare, food stamp energy assistance, rent subsidies and grant cuts.

Under President Ronald Reagan's budget many assistance programs will be eliminated most will have funding reduced. Program directors in Utah express concern about cuts.

Mrs. Lowe summed up many low-income families' fears concerning the budget cuts.

"The new laws are really scary," she said. "You work so hard to get something, then you get your head above water, something happens."

Bumming around in the library

Fred Burford rears up for another day of study in the Harold B. Lee Library. According to his doctor, his posture is part of frequent meditation which makes him feel warm and relaxed.
